

Fabulous Flow documentary opening affair

Tuesday, 01 June 2010 18:35 Written by Steven Strauss Monday, 31 May 2010 09:35

Flow Affair fundraiser was sensational

The Flow Affair fundraiser charity event took place in April at the LGBT community center in New York City. Award-winning director and community activist Wolfgang Busch took the opportunity to host a spectacular website launch party for his new documentary, Flow Affair by Art From The Heart Films.

"Flow Affair is a historic art film about the New York City flag, fan and flogging dance community, capturing the passing down of a thirty year old Greenwich Village disco dance tradition." Wolfgang Busch's goal was to raise funds for various NYC artistic programs.

The event began with a short clip from Flow Affair, which made quite an impact on the audience. Applause filled the room when it was over, and then the entertainment began. So many sensational performances took place such as a fashion show, an all female Chinese fan dance group, an African dance interpretation, singing, flagging, fanning, voguing and flogging. After a few performances there was a lecture segment which informed us about the history of flagging and gave tribute to Wolfgang Busch for all of his hard work and dedication to his causes. Later on, R&B singer Meli'sa Morgan and Tony Award Winner Melba Moore took to the stage one after the other for a finale which literally brought the house to its feet. The incredible duo put on performances that no one at the event should ever forget. Melba Moore said "I felt compelled to support the LGBT community, as they have supported my music and me for so many years. You gotta have a dream and if you don't have a dream how you gonna make a dream come true, huh?"

For more information on the Flow Affair and Art From The Heart Films, check out their website at <http://www.flowaffair.org/index.html>.